Growth project at Kiltarlity WwTW

Our Project

The existing Waste Water Treatment Works at Kiltarlity currently serves across the village of Kiltarlity and surrounding areas. Investment needs are reviewed regularly, taking consideration of the best available technology and the performance of the existing plant, as well as changes within the communities served. Scottish Water wants to provide the capacity to support the community as it continues to grow and flourish for the coming years.

Upgrade Access Track

The existing access track is to be upgraded to make it more suitable for HGV access, in doing this we have to;

- Clear trees and vegetation
- Widen existing access track to 4.5m
- Re-route track at bend
- Widen turning area at WWTW
- Landscaping

Environmental

The footprint of the new access track and the works extension has been minimised as far as possible to reduce the amount of tree removal necessary. The project includes compensatory planting. Full habitat surveys will be carried out to ensure minimal disruption to the wildlife in the area. It is recognised that the track currently serves as a walking route and an alternative will be provided throughout the course of the works to ensure that area remains available while minimising the public exposure to construction vehicles.
